Judiciary Police urges teenagers not to take part in any dangerous game

Dear Principal

A recent episode of the South Korean variety show Running Man has sparked controversy after it made its participants wrap rubber bands around their heads.

Participants were told to wrap as many elastic bands around their heads and whoever had the most rubber bands on in 60 seconds win. Many looked to be grimacing in pain and some even shouted “Help” during the game.

There are concerns that youngsters may try out the game after watching the show. We would like to urge all teenagers not to engage in such dangerous game to protect themselves from harm; parents are also advised to pay attention to their children and discuss the risks involved with them.
